ALGORITHMIC HEDGE FUND report JULY 2022

The trading portfolio of the Atlantis Private Algorithmic Hedge Fund is realized with a daily frequency of trading in high liquidity markets. The objective of the fund is to provide an absolute return with a moderate risk profile and low correlation of the underlying assets. The Fund seeks to achieve its objectives by developing, testing, and implementing a portfolio of systematic and algorithmic trading models. The trading portfolio includes several market assets in metals, currency instruments, indices, and energy assets. Execution of individual trades takes place in regulated, centralized, and derivative markets. The strategy executes long and short positions to benefit from the identified short, medium, and seasonal trends and trends resulting from repetitive patterns, price formations. The system can apply a hedge trading approach in critical situations and high volatility. The goal of the portfolio, which is calibrated from ~ 50 logically different trading systems, is to provide profit each month. Our risk management is strictly based on clearly defined rules of a dynamically changing portfolio that constantly adapts to market conditions. OVERVIEW

The private algorithmic hedge fund - ATLANTIS recorded a decline of -1,14% in July 2022. Flows speak for themselves. Investors continue to hold long positions on the US dollar and are short (sellers) on euros. Growth is slowing on both sides of the Atlantic. However, the economic slowdown is more worrying in the eurozone (energy crisis, industrial confidence at its lowest, Italian political risk, engulfed supply chains, etc.). If the energy crisis deepens this autumn, the eurozone is likely to enter recession. This would increase downward pressure on the single currency. The euro fell 2.32% month-on-month against the dollar. This is due to the deterioration in terms of trade resulting from the energy crisis. The euro continues to slide against the Swiss franc. This is good news for the Swiss National Bank (SNB), which wants a strong currency in order to limit imported inflation. This strategy has been successful so far. The Swiss franc has gained nearly 5% over the past three months against the single currency.
